THE MYSTERIOUS MURDER OF A SALOON-KEEPER AT PARIS, TEX.

A Tough "Hero" Club-Salle Boyd's Trial-Terrific Battle Between Indignant Miners and Brutal Italians-The Fleetwood-Trout Tragedy-A Freight Car Mystery-Murdered His Rival-A Bigamist in Luck

PARIS, Tex., May 19.—A horrible murder was committed some time last night in southern part of the city, near the Texas & Pacific Depot, the victim being Andrew Shannon, one of the proprietors of a saloon near the said depot. He was last seen last night about 9 p. m. It is supposed that the murderer entered his bedroom in the back part of the saloon while he was asleep and dealt the deadly blow with a rough instrument, supposed to be a bar of iron, crushing in the left side of his head. When found early this morning he was in bed in his night-clothes, lying on his right side and apparently covered, all but his head, and from appearance he never struggled after the deadly blow was dealt. His pockets were rifled of $20 or $30. Nothing else about the room was disturbed. Mr. Shannon was about 35 years old and a son of Mrs. Redding of this place, and was a quiet, peaceable citizen. There is no clue to the murderer, but the officers are busy trying to ferret out the perpetrator of the bloody crime.

Likely to Be Lynched.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 19.—A special from Bingham says: "Yesterday morning a negro came upon a white man and a horse in a thicket near town. 'Squire Leslie, on being informed, gathered a posse and proceeded to the thicket, where the man met them with a pistol in each hand. One of the posse fired at him, when he retreated, firing as he did so. Fourteen shots were exchanged, none of the posse being hit. The man then came forward, and the posse fired at him. He was killed. In the saddle pocket which he abandoned were found letters showing that his name was John Jennings of Lee County, Miss. After escaping the posse he stole a valuable horse, and continued his flight. A posse was organized and is now pursuing with the intention of lynching him."

KNOXVILLE, Mo., May 19.—On opening an empty freight car, which arrived here on the Wheeling road to-day, the body of a man, with his head horribly pounded and lying in a pool of blood was found. Physicians succeeded in reviving him sufficiently to enable him to state that his name was Frank C. Snyder of Deane, that he had traveled in company with a man named Miller, stealing a ride; and that Miller had attacked him with a car with a coupling pin and without provocation or warning. Snyder said that he had been severely injured, and that he was unable to move. He was taken to the hospital, where he is now lying.

Indignant Miner and Brutal Italians.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
WHEELBARRE, Pa., May 19.—Great excitement reigned in the vicinity of Brownstown and Yatesville, two little mining towns near Pittston, yesterday. A fierce riot raged for some time, and a genuine lynching came near taking place. A man named Miller, who was the cause of the riot, was killed. The riot was caused by a dispute over a piece of land. The miners were indignant at the Italians, who were working on the land. The Italians were brutal and violent. The riot was a terrible one, and many lives were lost.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 19.—A sensational trial was given this morning to the trial of Salle Boyd's supposed accomplice, John Smith in the murder of John Leslie, which took place at Salle's house last January. Smith was on the witness stand. He is 19 years old and is the very first defendant who is 18. He started out in such a way that Judge Garrison told him that he would not let anything that would tend to incriminate him. Lawyer Gillespie, Smith's counsel, was allowed a few minutes' private talk with Smith. Gillespie then asked to have the witness taken from the stand. Smith's counsel then asked to have the witness taken from the stand. Smith's counsel then asked to have the witness taken from the stand.

m. the Coroner's office was notified. A reporter accompanied the Coroner's assistant to the house at noon. A policeman led the way along the hall of the cellar to the front wood hole. On opening the door the form of a woman, apparently dead, was found on her right side lengthwise of the box with her head held up by a candle. The body was dressed in a black dress and button shoes. The right hand, which was doubled up under the body was found on a piece of silver and pennies. At first glance it was thought the woman had wandered into the place and been killed. When the clock which was doubled under the woman's neck was pulled aside a horrible sight presented itself. There was a long, clean cut clear across the neck, which appeared to have been caused by a slash of a stiletto. The jugular vein had been severed.

A Bigamist in Luck.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, May 19.—A queer case of wife devotion was developed in Justice C. J. White's court this morning. Two marriage certificates, properly filled out, one wife present—the would not testify against him—and two who held themselves aloof from the clutches of Office Plunkett, were not sufficient to hold Frank Puncheon to the criminal court on a charge of bigamy. Office Plunkett said that he had tried to find Mrs. Resett Parker, to whom Justice White married Puncheon in January, but he was unsuccessful, and she had evidently been told to keep away from the court-room. Lottie Malin, the woman to whom he had been married on his release from the Waupun Penitentiary in 1886, where he served three years on a charge of bigamy, was present, but she said she would not prosecute him, and the woman from Fort Wayne, who was also present, said she would not prosecute him either. It seems that the affections of both Lottie and Lottie are deeply entwined about Frank Puncheon, as they both called to see him yesterday at the county jail.

HAYWARD, O., May 19.—A special Grand Jury was impaneled here this morning to decide upon the case of William Langton of Nelson Township, fifteen miles from this city. On Thursday George Lake of Kent, in this county, a brother-in-law of Langton, was charged with having criminally assaulted his own daughter, a girl of 17 years, on April 24. It is alleged on Langton's side that Langton, who is a prominent citizen, had a purpose by other means, chloroformed his wife late at night on the 19th, and then went to the room of his daughter. Being a powerful man, he succeeded in holding her until she also became helpless from the influence of the work held against her mouth and nose. He then threatened to kill both of them if they informed on him. Being afraid of him they kept silent for some days. But on a attempt to renew the assault on the girl, they sought Mr. Lake's brother-in-law, who came bound by two men to await the action of the Grand Jury.

THE BROWNS WIN AN EXCITING GAME AFTER ELEVEN INNINGS.

A Contest That Caused Wild Excitement in the City of Monarchs—Louisville, Cincinnati and Kansas City Win the American and National Games. Detroit and Pittsburgh the National Games. Minor League Games—Base Ball Gossip.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTIMORE, May 19.—St. Louis won the season game with Baltimore by a score of 5 to 3 after a contest of eleven innings. It was a great game and brought out the attendance of the season thus far. As the champions made their appearance for the preliminary practice they were applauded heartily and Comiskey, Latham and Robinson were cordially observed when they first stepped to the plate. The fielding on both sides was sharp and some of the catches of fly balls assigned the players as well as the error column shows up rather large and some of them were inexcusable, but the victory was less than the home team.

As the ninth inning drew to a close, with the score 5 to 3, the excitement ran high, and all eyes were turned to the pitcher, who was to be the last to pitch. The error column shows up rather large and some of them were inexcusable, but the victory was less than the home team.

As the ninth inning drew to a close, with the score 5 to 3, the excitement ran high, and all eyes were turned to the pitcher, who was to be the last to pitch. The error column shows up rather large and some of them were inexcusable, but the victory was less than the home team.

THE WATERS RECEDING.
A Prospect That the Flood is at an End—The Situation.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
KROOK, Ky., May 19.—At last we have the "beginning of the end" of the great flood of May, 1898, which has proved so disastrous. We cannot safely say that the worst is over. The decline has set in and the river at this point continues to fall, though as yet not at a rate to please those whose property and business interests are affected by the flood. The fall during the past twenty-four hours was two feet and six inches. The stage of water at 10 o'clock to-night is five feet. The highest point reached was 19 feet 5 inches. At the signal service office the opinion was expressed that by to-morrow the fall will be so rapid that within a very few days the water would be at a stage that will allow a resumption of all operations interrupted by the almost unprecedented flood.

The most serious flood ever known in this section of the Mississippi valley. The farmers in the lowlands had fully recovered from the effects and losses of the flood. The water was receding and the crops were being saved. The situation was a hopeful one.

did they would like to hear that mean man say it was so good. But the cross man didn't come around again. He sneaked away a little while after and no little boy or girl who had been told that he or she didn't have a hand in the greatest festival, Jubilee, could be seen to concert the Sunday school children ever carried out. It was a big thing and settled in the hearts of the children and every youngster that behaved himself, that did his best, that was a good teacher or superintendent more than a pack of trouble and a few dollars helped make it so.

But what was it for anyway, a concert, or a picnic, or a jubilee? One little hungry boy who was eating all the time and didn't leave anything but cake, said it was a picnic. But he didn't know anything about music and in the afternoon when the band was playing and everybody was singing and dancing, he was a little picnic who had eaten himself tired, was sitting asleep on the grass right near

The dancing was a magnificent display, the dancing squads file in. Each of the eighty odd schools represented among the singers. The dancing squads filed to the front of the grand stand and took positions, beginning with the only. Wednesday Neumann sent the following note to his wife, who remained in a fashionable residence on Williams avenue, in Edgewood, a city suburb:

A little puff of smoke curled out of the cannon's mouth away out on the green field. The crowd of spectators in the grand stand had come to see the result of the many rehearsals. The cannon fired, and the crowd's attention was struck into "Coronation," and with a roar the 4,000 voices caught up the strain of the song. The music was so loud that the extremes of the stand dragged a crowd of spectators to the front of the grand stand to get a better view of the scene. There was a rush for available lunching places, but they were not hard to find. The sun by this time had heated the air within the high houses of the grounds and had dried the lameness out of the grass. From 11 to 1 the programme added was to be an intermission.

"My dear Mary, I am, m—Olivia: am going and will not be back until Saturday night. I cannot compensate for the disappointment. Everything looked so promising, and my love was so near the surface, but it has all faded away as surely I must go. You can attend to your own affairs, and I shall be glad to add supper and notifying the guests not to assemble. I shall think of the unfortunate little girl who had been so kind to me at the end, but it cannot be helped. FAREWELL! I shall be home again in two or three days without surmise. Philosophically we rather went to work to notify the invited guests, but they were so much surprised and misunderstood. All trace of Neumann was cut off, almost entirely. He still remains here, and at the houses of friends. He had left the city."

of which the following is an abstract:

In speaking of those diseases in which the use of Carlsbad Water is indicated I will confine myself to such in which evidence is given for thoroughly established usefulness.

First are to be mentioned diseases of the stomach, among them and above all the true Chronic Catarrhal Inflammation with substantial changes of the mucous membrane, with ulceration and gathering of stringy and often somewhat offensive mucus.

The unnatural motions of the stomach causing pressure and belchings, the irritations of the intestines resulting in catarrh of the bowels, and the inflamed mucous membranes are the most fruitful of all known causes of disease. Out of them grow most kidney and liver troubles, diabetes, all rheumatic affections and gout. I have found that the unnatural motions of the stomach cease the intestinal troubles become soothed, and health results from a continued use of Carlsbad Water. The diuretic effects of this water, its quiet action upon the lining of the stomach and its healing power upon the inflamed intestines are beyond all praise.

Dr. Lustig, of Teplitz, issued a pamphlet wherein he recognized the great efficacy of Carlsbad Water in RHEUMATISM, both acute and chronic, when taken COLD. In conclusion I have only to refer to the DIURETIC effects of Carlsbad Water, and need not enumerate all diseases in which it is desirable to produce a large diuresis.

It is, perhaps, not superfluous to mention that Carlsbad Water is in no sense a mere purgative, as most people believe; but it is an alternative and eliminative remedy, which dissolves out tenacious bile, allays irritation and removes obstruction. BY AIDING NATURE, and not by sudden and excessive stimulants, as most cathartic remedies do. Its action is certain and a cure when effected is permanent. Not infrequently patients have to use the Sprudel Sal, in addition to the water, as a laxative.

Dr. J. Seegen, Professor of Medicine at the University of Vienna, in his celebrated work on Diabetes, says: "Of all remedies in my large experience with this disease, and the many experiments which I, as well as some prominent men as Anger, Fleckles, Hlawaschek and others have made, Carlsbad Water deserves to be placed in the first rank. "All of the above writers agree with me that the use of the Carlsbad Water exercises a very beneficial influence in Diabetes. I have in the course of many years treated a very large number of patients suffering with the disease, and have, with great interest, noticed the effect of Carlsbad Water in reducing the amount of sugar. My invariable experience has been that almost without exception an improvement was marked and noticeable during and after the use of the waters, even where no strict diet was observed."

PROF. HLAWAZEK

Gives the following representation of the effects of Carlsbad Mineral Waters:

"What we have positively ascertained is, that Carlsbad Water in a HIGH DEGREE PROMOTES ORGANIC CHANGES IN THE SYSTEM; that principally by its alkaline constituents it acts as an absorbent of fat and as an antacid throughout the organism, and that it performs this wholesome action by stimulating and chemically ALTERING THE WHOLE PROCESS OF SECRETION."

The experience of Prof. Jaeksch is that one of the most prominent effects of Carlsbad Water consists in absorption of fresh and old exudation; this depends upon the diuretic action of the water, which will prove efficient in all tumors originating from exudations and in the various maladies produced by them.

Prof. Hlawaschek has proven by clinical experiments, &c., that the Waters of Carlsbad act in the same manner when taken at home as if taken at the Spring, and their remedial action is not impaired by export.

Free movement is one of the principal conditions, particularly for those people whose sickness chiefly was caused by a sedentary life. Suitable muscular activity promotes the excretion of the products of decomposition accumulated in different parts of the body by inactivity. Exercise, consisting of walking, &c., should be moderate and adapted to the condition of the patient.

Beware of imitations. The genuine is bottled under the supervision of the city of Carlsbad and has the seal of the city and the signature of "Eisner & Mendelson Co." on the neck of every bottle.

ONE DOZEN QUARTS, $4.00. ONE CASE, CONTAINING FIFTY BOTTLES (QUARTS), $15.00. SHIPPED TO ANY PART OF THE UNITED STATES.

NYE IN WASHINGTON.

HE RECOMMENDS THE "POST-DISPATCH" TO PRESIDENT-CLEVELAND.

The Great American Humorist's Experience in Washington Barber-Shop—Importance of the Colored Man in the National Capital—Senator Frye on the Tariff—Advice to Statesmen.

Special Correspondence of the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—When I got off the Pennsylvania train yesterday I went to a barber shop before I did anything else. I have a thick, Venetian red, chin-hill beard, which grows very rapidly, and which gives me a funny appearance every twenty-four hours. Unless I place myself frequently in the hands of a barber, at first I used to shave myself, but I cut myself to pieces in such a slovenly manner, without seeming to impede the growth of the rich and foxy beard, that until last summer I gave up being my own barber. At that time I was presented with a safety razor, which the manufacturer said would not cut my face, because it was impossible for it to cut anything except the beard. This safety razor resembles in appearance several other toilet articles, such as the spoke-shave, the road scraper, the can opener, the lawn mower and the turbine water-wheel, but it does not look like a razor. It also looks like a carpet-sweeper some, and reminds me of a monkey-wrench. It is said that you can shave yourself on a train if you will use this instrument. I tried it once last winter while going West. In fact I took the trip largely to see if one could shave on board the train safely with this razor. I had no special trouble. At least I did not cut off any features that I cared anything about, but I was disappointed in the results, and also in the length of time consumed in cleaning the razor after I got through. I was shaving myself only from Forty-second street to Albany, but it took me from Albany to Omaha to pull the razor apart, and to dig out the coagulated lather and the dead whiskers. I now employ a valet, whose name is Patria McGloria. He irons my trousers, shaves and dresses me and moves the lawn. When I come to Washington I am too democratic to travel with a valet, fearing that it might send me several thousand votes some day. A Remembrance of Ingalls, and so I leave my maid at home to wash and dress the said. In that way he does not miss me, and I get the credit at Washington of being a man who spends so much time thinking of his country's welfare that he doesn't have a chance to look pretty.

I did not fall into a very gaudy barber-shop. The appointments were like some of the President's appointments. I thought, the barber who waited on me asked me if I taste, but this is not a political letter. I do not wish to antagonize anybody, especially the President of the United States. He has always treated me well. That reminds me that I promised last winter to send him the paper and never thought of it again until now. I wish that the office would send the paper to Grover Cleveland, Rooms 2 and 3, White House, Washington, D. C., and if he doesn't pay for it I will. Mark it paid till March, and if he wants the address changed I will have him write to the office about it. He said he believed he got more real juice and advertisements and red-hot, rip-roaring editorial thought in the Post-Dispatch than in most any other paper. When a man says that after he has had the Congressional Record sent to him free for years, I say that we ought to send him the Post-Dispatch whether he pays for it or not. All I asked in return was this: "Mr. President," said I, looking down calmly into his eyes as though I would read his very soul, and while I held his hand and prevented his going away, "Mr. President, you meet a great many people, I am told. Moist-mouthed babies from a great distance are brought to you, many of them suffering with disordered and self-induced stomachs. You kiss these children and thus please their parents. Besides, you meet thousands of people who are not parents. You shake hands with meeting officials and the yomany of every State. Thousands of people every year come many hundreds of miles to shake hands with you, visit Mount Vernon, borrow a few dollars and go home. I am told that you, Mr. President, are publishing a good paper, and that notwithstanding the fact that you have the largest circulation of any paper in the United States, your advertising rates are moderate. I will have the daily sent to you, including the Sunday paper, also the weekly, semi-weekly and Almanac. I do not ask you to give us a notice in your annual message, because an annual message is a thing in which the Executive does not wish to express an opinion on anything, but just say to those you meet and shake hands with from this out, that you are a constant reader and that you like our paper." He laughed heartily and shook hands with another man. I will now return to the barber-shop. It was a plain structure, with beautiful saraparilla pictures here and there on the walls and a faint odor of rancid pomatum and overworked hair restoratives.

There were three chairs richly upholstered in two-ply carpeting of some inflammatory hue, with large vines and the kind of flowers which grow on carpets, but nowhere else. I have seen blossom woven into ingrain carpets, varying in color from a dead black to the color of a hepatitis, but I have never seen one that reminded me of anything I ever saw in nature. The chair I sat in also had springs in it. They were made of selections from the Washington Monument. The barber who waited on me asked me if I wanted a shave. A great many barbers ask me this during the year. Sometimes they do it from habit, and sometimes they do it to brighten up my life and bring a smile to my wan cheek. As I have no hair the thinking mind naturally and by a direct course of reason arrives at the conclusion that when I go into a barber shop and climb into a chair I do so for the purpose of getting shaved, and not with the idea of having my fortune told or my deposition taken. Still barbers continue to ask me this question and look at each other with ill-concealed mirth. I said yes I would like a shave unless he preferred to take my temperature or amuse me by making a death mask of himself. He then began to strap a large razor with a double-shuffle movement and to also me up at the same time. I think that a colored man, but he had lived in Washington a long time and knew a great deal more than he about his lot had fallen elsewhere. He spoke with some feeling and fed me with about the most unpalatable latter I think I ever participated in. He also did an odd thing when he went for the second time over my face. I never have noticed the custom outside of that shop. Most barbers, in making the second trip over a customer's face, moisten one side at a time with a sponge or the damp hand as they go along, but in this case a large quantity of lather was put in my ear and, as he needed it, he took out what he required over by himself. I would drive in my poor, weak, faltering way to impress upon them the awful responsibility which rests upon them, not only as polite and fluent conversationalists, classical and courteous debaters, speaking pieces for the benefit of future generations, of referring to each other as honorable, thieves, deserters, bummers, beasts and great moral abominations on the body politic; rehearsing campaign speeches in Congress at an expense of $20 per day each, and meantime obstructing who some might call legislation, but as the conservators of etiquette, statesmanship and morality for a race of people the great responsibility for whose welfare still rests upon a nation.

Only the day before yesterday I saw a thin, wiry and colored gentleman peering around in an ash barrel for something, and I waited to see what he was after. He resurrected a sad and dejected plug hat, and though it was not half so good as the one he wore, he seemed very much pleased with it and put it on. I ventured to ask him why he had done so without improving his appearance, and he said that for a long time he had been looking for a hat which would lighten the resemblance which people had often noticed and remarked in days gone by, both in person, ash, and general carriage, with a conversation, ash, also in the matter of clear-cut and logical life sentences, as existing between himself, ash, and Senator Evans, ash. He believed that he had struck it, ash.

As spring warms up the air about Washington, the heating apparatus of the Capitol building begins to relax its interest, and now you can visit most any part of the stately pile without being scrambled in your own embarrassment. Last winter I heard Senator Frye of Maine make his great tariff speech, and although there was nothing about the speech itself which seemed to involve much exercise or industry—it was the same speech in every essential quality that I have heard every November since I began to take an interest in politics—the perspiration ran down his face in small washouts and sweatlets and fell in the arena with a mellow plump.

I believe this unnatural heat to be the cause of much ill-health among our law-makers, and I freely admit that the unhealthy surroundings of Washington and the great contrast between the hot air of the Capitol and the cold air outside have done a great deal towards keeping me out of the Senate. The night air of Washington is also filled with malaria and is much worse than any night air I have ever used before.

I am stopping at the — House, which has been recently refitted and refurbished, and electric bells, a bath-room, elevator and moderate rates. It is a splendid hotel. I leave the name blank, and the proof-reader can insert the name of any hotel in Washington which he thinks the above glowing description would apply to.

A STORY OF THE WAR.
Applicable to Memorial Day, but No Copy-Right Applied For.
(Pressure of other matter prevents the publication of the first hundred or more Decoration Day stories received at this office. To do justice to each and every one of our enthusiastic and patriotic lady contributors, their manuscripts have been carefully read for the purpose of furnishing the readers of the POST-DISPATCH with a composite production which, although a trifle condensed, will be recognized in many parts of the country.)

CHAPTER I.
Charming New England village. Loving couple. Sumter fired on. Patriotic young man enlists despite wife's entreaties. Fight at Gettysburg. Antietam, &c. Writes to wife every week. Letters lost. Is considered dead. Lee surrenders. George returns to native village. Sees wife clinging to other man. Little girl, 4 years old, sitting on her lap. Inquires of strangers. Learns that wife suffered privation and married for sake of little one born two months after enlistment. George weeps. Will not interfere with Mary's happiness. Takes train for West. "Better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all."

CHAPTER II.
Western cattle ranch. Stage coach pursued by Indians. George, owner of ranch. Young woman in coach. Indiana killed driver. George kills Indians. Young woman faints. Comes to. Falls in love with deliverer. Spring time. I have ever used before.

CHAPTER III.

CHAPTER IV.
Decorated Day. A bus. Charming New England village. Gray-haired veterans in line. Lovely children clothed in white at head procession. "Daughter, my daughter!" "Father, oh, father!" Recognize each other. Don't know why. Had never met. Blood thicker than water. Warm embraces. Wife's second husband dead. Never loved him. Always had pined for George. Enter Mary's cottage. Old man weeps. Mary faints, daughter cries. Everything explained. First love triumphant. Reunited after twenty-seven years. Romance in real life. Save of money from cemetery. Decoration exercises over. George and Mary live in close embrace. "Nother salvo. "Under and dew, waiting judgment day; under rose blue, under lilacs gray." — G. W. WARRIEN.

McCrackie (after waiting ten minutes): "Why can't I get 1.24, Central?"
Central: "Haven't you got them yet?"
McCrackie: "No! I've got nothing yet but parasites of the left arm."

THE POLITICAL FIELD.
In one of his speeches at the St. Louis Republican Club Maj. Chas. Peary said that no trouble would be encountered this year in raising funds for the campaign. He is quoted among the politicians as saying that half a million dollars could be raised to fight the tariff issue in this State, where interests needing protection are numerous and awake to the interests of the campaign. The party machinery is now organized in the city and State, and nothing remains to be done but to bring in the slaves of war.

At the Republican State Convention Charley Schweickhardt was made Secretary of the Committee on Order of Business. The convention adjourned at 1 o'clock to reconvene again at 3 p. m. The two hours intervening were consumed in deciding on the order of business. It was finally agreed, among other things, that the first ballot should be a complimentary one, and the second for election. On adjourning the hungry committeemen hurried off, leaving the Secretary Schweickhardt to write the report and to present it to the convention hall to present the report, the last recommendation of which read as follows: "Your Committee on Order of Business beg leave to further recommend that the first ballot be informal and complimentary and that subsequent ballots be for election." The recommendation brought down the house.

"Pony" Boyd of Springfield, describing the dense ignorance of the Democrats of Illinois district to the assembled Republicans as "Socialists," said: "What I really asked on Bland's constituents what is the tariff, and he said, 'I'll be damned if I ever seen one, an' I bin to every neck in the woods hereabouts.' Mr. Boyd said that on further inquiry he ascertained that the general impression in the district was that the tariff, about which so much had recently been said, was a long, hairy thing."

During his presence at the Democratic State Convention President George W. Allen received very complimentary notice from the delegates. Mr. Allen's name was generally mentioned through the State in connection with the Lieutenant-Governorship. He is still regarded by many of the politicians as the running mate of a dark horse which has not yet been trotted out on the track.

Editor McGrath made a hit on Thursday at the Democratic convention at Sedalia by producing in the presence of the delegates a material dark horse with a pedigree reading wonderfully like the biography of Chief Justice R. M. Norton. Followers of all candidates are still discussing Judge Norton's name with an enthusiasm that bodes nothing to the reality of the boom of the several candidates.

Worthy of Record.
In front of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. City Man (showing a Chicago friend the sights): "That is the Worth monument."
Chicago Friend (in astonishment): "What is he doing?"
City Man: "Of course he's dead."
Chicago Friend (then long pause): "What does your wife get for dressing now?"
